

As the coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) pandemic continues to impact business globally, Latin America has not been spared. As of the date of this alert, every country in the region had reported cases of COVID-19, and countries in the region are taking different approaches to combat the pandemic. As part of our Latin America team, the Caribbean and Central America Desk is tracking measures implemented in the Spanish Caribbean that affect business operations, commercial operations and employment. This alert discusses recent developments in the Dominican Republic, Puerto Rico and Cuba.

Dominican Republic

The first confirmed case of COVID-19 was reported on March 1, 2020. As of March 30, 2020, there had been 901 reported cases of COVID-19 in the Dominican Republic and 42 deaths due to COVID-19. Additional information is available on the website of the Ministry of Public Health.

The Dominican Republic is currently subject to a daily curfew from 5 p.m. to 6 a.m. nationwide. Inbound and outbound passenger air and maritime transportation has been suspended, and non-essential businesses have been ordered to close, with exceptions made for grocery stores, drug stores and banks. For more detailed information on measures adopted by the government, please see the newsletter produced by our Santo Domingo office.

Puerto Rico

The first confirmed case of COVID-19 was reported on March 13, 2020. As of March 30, 2020, there had been 239 reported cases of COVID-19 in Puerto Rico and eight deaths due to COVID-19. Additional information and updated statistics can be found on the website of the Health Department.

Puerto Rico is currently subject to a 24-hour curfew and compelled closure of non-essential business activities until at least April 12, 2020. Exceptions to the stay-at-home order are strictly limited, and vehicular traffic, even for exempt purposes, is limited to certain days of the week depending on the license plate number.

Filing deadlines in proceedings before the state courts of Puerto Rico were extended until April 27, 2020, and hearings were stayed. The US District Court for the District of Puerto Rico announced that it was suspending hearings until May 4, 2020, and extending filing deadlines originally until April 10, 2020.

- On March 30, 2020, the governor issued an executive order expanding the curfew and closure of non-essential businesses. Below is a summary of the key provisions:
 - Effective March 31, 2020 (and until at least April 12, 2020), there is a 24-hour curfew across the island. During the curfew, access to roads is limited to persons who need to access healthcare services and facilities; provide assistance and supplies to minors, dependents and those in need of care; acquire food, medicines and other essential goods; visit financial institutions (for emergency purposes); or provide or receive services that are exempt from the curfew and non-essential business closure order.
 - Effective April 1, 2020, vehicular access for exempt purposes under the curfew is limited to certain days of the week based on the license plate number: even-numbered plates may transit on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, while odd-numbered plates may transit on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. Vehicular access will be restricted to emergencies, commuting to an essential business or exempt services.
 - All government offices, except those providing essential services, are closed until at least April 12, 2020.
 - The following businesses and organizations are considered essential under the executive order: (1) grocers and businesses that sell food, including restaurants that limit their operations to take-out and/or delivery; (2) providers of medical equipment and supplies; (2) drug stores; (3) gas stations and fuel distributors; (4) banks; (5) senior care facilities; and (6) organizations that offer basic services to the economically disadvantaged, e.g., shelters and food banks.
 - The following services and/or service providers are exempt from the curfew and non-essential business closure order: (1) plumbers, electricians and providers of other services that are necessary to maintain homes, offices and other properties; (2) roadside assistance service providers (but limited to emergencies); (3) parcel delivery services; (4) funeral homes; (5) auto repair shops (but only for emergencies, on certain days of the week and by appointment); (6) hardware stores (but only on certain days of the week and by appointment); and (7) installation, repair and maintenance of critical telecommunications infrastructure.

- The following persons are exempt from the curfew: (1) personnel of private, federal and state public safety entities; (2) healthcare professionals; (3) personnel of entities involved in wholesale distribution and manufacturing of food and goods; (4) personnel working with utilities and critical infrastructure; (5) personnel of call centers; (6) personnel of airports and port facilities; (7) members of the press; (8) persons attending an emergency; and (9) officials of the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the government of Puerto Rico performing essential tasks.
- All elective medical procedures are suspended, and physicians must take measures in their offices and clinics to ensure that services are offered only by appointment and taking proper measures to ensure safety.
- Theaters, clubs, lounges, casinos, concert venues, amusement parks, fitness facilities, bars and all entertainment venues are closed.
- Construction work is allowed, but only for emergency purposes or to offer critical maintenance or repair services related to hospitals, potable water, electric power and communications.
- On March 26, 2020, the governor announced that the curfew and order to close all non-essential businesses would extend until at least April 12, 2020. She also announced that the daily curfew would start at 7 p.m.
- On March 23, 2020, the governor announced a US$787 million financial package to help alleviate the economic impact of the COVID-19 pandemic. Among other things, the package calls for a moratorium on payments of mortgages and commercial loans, bonuses for public safety and public healthcare employees, financial assistance to small businesses and self-employed workers, and additional funds for the public education department to acquire tablets and other equipment to promote remote learning.
- On March 15, 2020, the governor issued an executive order imposing a curfew from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. daily, during which time access to roads is limited to emergency purposes or personnel involved in public safety, healthcare, wholesale distribution and manufacturing of food and goods, critical infrastructure and utilities, and the press. Also, all non-essential business activities were ordered to cease until March 30, 2020.
- On March 12, 2020, the Governor of Puerto Rico declared a state of emergency due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Cuba

The first confirmed case of COVID-19 in Cuba was reported on March 11, 2020. As of March 30, 2020, there had been 186 reported cases of COVID-19 in Cuba and six deaths due to COVID-19. Additional information and updated statistics can be found on the website of the Ministry of Public Health.

On March 31, 2020, the government announced that it was suspending flights in and out of the island. One week earlier, it had announced that it was closing schools and suspending classes until April 20, 2020. The government also ordered tourists and all persons who enter the country to remain in quarantine, and has instructed restaurants to reduce capacity by 50%. The government is promoting social distancing, and has not issued an island-wide stay-at-home order, although some municipalities have implemented stricter measures.
