About Cassandra

Cassandra C. Wilkins is an associate in our Litigation Practice Group focusing on commercial disputes related to products liability and automotive product warranty.

Prior to joining the firm, Cassandra served as a deputy district attorney, where she prosecuted felony and misdemeanor matters. She managed cases through all stages of prosecution, developed case strategy, drafted and argued motions, conducted preliminary and evidentiary hearings, and first-chaired jury trials.

Before entering legal practice, Cassandra gained experience in commercial transactions and regulatory matters, including work in the Software-as-a-Service (SaaS) and energy industries.

Cassandra graduated from Santa Clara University School of Law, where she competed as part of the trial team and honors moot court, and served as editor-in-chief of The Advocate. She earned her undergraduate degree from Stanford University, where she studied communications with a focus on print journalism and served as a news editor for The Stanford Daily.
