About Charlotte

Charlotte Rowley has 15 years of experience as a commercial lawyer advising major UK and international businesses across technology, healthcare, consumer services and regulated industries.

Most recently, she served as senior legal counsel at a leading electronics company, supporting the Health Systems division on high-value commercial contracts, complex service arrangements and regulatory compliance.

In this position, Charlotte was valued not only for her legal expertise, but also for her deep understanding of the commercial priorities and operational pressures facing both the business and its customers. She is skilled at translating legal considerations into commercially relevant guidance, ensuring advice is framed in a way that supports strategic objectives, reduces risk and enables effective decision-making. Her cross-functional approach allows her to work seamlessly with teams across leadership, sales, procurement, operations and technical functions to align legal strategy with business outcomes.

Previously, Charlotte held senior in-house and legal advisory roles within listed and multinational organisations across a diverse range of industries. This breadth of sector experience gives her a strong appreciation of the “ultimate client”, whether a consumer, a customer, a partner organisation or frontline operational teams, and ensures her advice is grounded in real-world impact rather than legal theory.

Charlotte began her career as a debt advisory and restructuring lawyer, advising lenders, corporates and insolvency professionals on financial restructurings, security enforcement and distressed transactions. This foundation honed her analytical precision, negotiation skills and strategic risk awareness.

Known for her calm, pragmatic and solution-driven approach, Charlotte is trusted to deliver clear, commercially relevant guidance that supports business growth, manages risk effectively and strengthens internal and external relationships.
