About Christopher

Christopher M. Seck is a seasoned litigator focused on complex commercial disputes, including fraud, antitrust, intellectual property and class actions. His practice spans matters across the US and internationally, often involving cross-border disputes and clients with global operations.

Known for his willingness to go the extra mile to stand between clients and trouble, he represents a broad range of clients, including Fortune 500 companies, financial institutions, real estate entities, technology startups and high-net-worth individuals, through every stage of litigation, from pre-suit investigation through trial and appeal, with substantial experience on both sides of the "v."

Christopher approaches each matter with determination, pragmatism, creativity and strategic judgment. He is valued for his meticulous attention to detail and disciplined clean execution, as well as for bringing a level of care and dedication that reflects a strong sense of personal responsibility for each client's matter.

He has earned praise from clients, colleagues and judges, and has received multiple professional distinctions, including repeated awards by leading legal industry organizations. His reputation is built on consistent performance as a precise, thoughtful and effective advocate in complex, high stakes matters.
