About Greg

Greg Wehrer is a seasoned first-chair trial lawyer with over 25 years of experience steering complex commercial disputes to successful resolutions.

As managing partner of the Houston office, Greg combines courtroom savvy with strategic business acumen to protect clients' interests in high-stakes litigation.

His practice focuses on the energy, healthcare and construction sectors, and often involves high-exposure litigation and novel legal issues. Greg excels at cutting through complexity to give his clients clear paths forward to success, whether in the courtroom or at the negotiating table.

Experience

- On behalf of the developer of a US$250 million+ battery energy storage project, obtained an order dismissing, with prejudice, plaintiffs' petition seeking an injunction against the project moving forward and for money damages. The dismissal included an award of attorneys' fees and costs.
- As lead trial counsel, achieved a defense win in a three-week "bet-the-company" Texas jury trial involving breach of contract, fraud and trade secret allegations arising from a natural gas storage project.
- Won a complete defense verdict for a major energy company in a six-month Kansas class-action jury trial involving substantial diminution-in-value real property claims.
- Favorably resolved a complex healthcare payor/provider dispute following a week-long arbitration hearing, while protecting a key business relationship for the client.
- Recovered millions of dollars for a manufacturing client in a dispute over a multi-year purchase agreement for high-pressure hydraulic fracturing pumps.
- Defended a developer of a high-capacity battery storage project in court against opposition by adjoining landowners.
- Favorably resolved a significant oil and gas royalty dispute for a major energy company, involving a novel "confusion of goods" theory and joint operating agreement claims.

- On behalf of a national managed care entity, secured dismissals of multiple Medicare audit and reimbursement lawsuits.
- Coordinated multi-state defense of a well-known heavy equipment manufacturer against breach of warranty and indemnity claims.
