About Jacob

Jacob Wirfel is a litigation associate based in our Houston office who represents clients in complex commercial disputes in state and federal courts. His practice includes energy litigation, contractual claims, employment-related matters, business torts, property disputes and personal injury defense. Jacob guides clients through all phases of litigation, from early case strategy and discovery through trial, leveraging a practical, detail-oriented approach. He also maintains an active pro bono practice, leveraging his legal skills to serve the broader community.

Experience

- Achieved a favorable settlement for an oil and gas exploration company in class action alleging breaches of fiduciary duties arising from a going-private class action.
- Represented Texas-based oil, gas and alternative energy companies in complex commercial and personal injury lawsuits arising out of Winter Storm Uri.
- Secured summary judgment for a downhole oil and gas tool manufacturer in a breach of contract dispute.
- Defended a major commercial real estate developer against construction defect claims.
- Successfully defended a financial advisory firm from claims of breaches of restrictive covenants and misappropriation of trade secrets.
- Obtained dismissal in arbitration for a national auditing firm facing nonsolicitation and trade secret misappropriation claims.
- Favorably resolved a high-stakes employment dispute on behalf of a measurement technology manufacturer.
- Following remand in high-profile sexual assault litigation that led to a change in Texas law, secured settlements with national organizations and a former judge.
- Briefed and argued an appeal on behalf of an asylum applicant before the US Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.
