About Katy

Katy Fisher focuses her practice on defending clients involved in complex cross-border investigations and government enforcement actions related to financial crime and regulatory misconduct.

Katy has extensive experience in advising and defending ultra-high net worth individuals and multinational institutions involved in multijurisdictional and multiagency financial crime investigations, particularly in relation to fraud, money laundering and international sanctions. As a former investigator and prosecutor of regulatory misconduct at the UK's Financial Conduct Authority, Katy has significant expertise in handling sensitive and complex financial services regulatory investigations and enforcement actions. Since relocating to Dubai in 2018, Katy has defended a multitude of clients involved in regulatory investigations and associated litigation throughout the Middle East, including in the DIFC, ADGM and QFC.

Katy has been consistently recognised as an Associate to Watch in Corporate Investigations by Chambers Global and as a key lawyer in Compliance and Investigations, as well as Financial Services Regulatory matters, by Legal 500. She is also recognised by Global Investigations Review (GIR) in its Women in Investigations, which "highlights 100 exceptional women in white-collar crime investigations". Chambers Global states that Katy is "a respected lawyer who has a high level of experience in cases relating to alleged white-collar fraud and money laundering". Chambers notes that "she is a fantastic investigator. She is really a rising star." Chambers also describes Katy as "brilliant", "very articulate, smart and [with] so much experience in regulatory matters".
