About Nathan

Nathan Romano is a senior financial executive with a track record of leading and scaling multibillion-dollar investment platforms, building high-performing global organizations and advising C-suites across the alternative asset management industry. His career spans leadership roles in asset management, investment banking and private markets strategy, where he has helped firms grow, restructure, raise capital and navigate complex transactions. He is the founder and co-chief executive officer of a boutique multifamily office launched in 2025.

Nathan previously served as president of a US$10 billion-plus alternative asset manager, where he led strategy, capital formation, product development and capital markets, as well as playing a key role in the firm's successful sale. Earlier, he was president and CEO of a US$25 billion-plus global investment firm, where he oversaw strategic planning, operational scaling and global organizational leadership. His experience spans asset management, investment banking, and private markets strategy, positioning him as a trusted advisor to investors, founders, family offices and leadership teams at critical inflection points.

Earlier in his career, Nathan held senior leadership positions at major Wall Street banks, where he was among the first senior bankers dedicated to delivering firmwide strategic advice to the C-suite of the banks' largest alternative asset management clients. His work helped pioneer a client-coverage model that reshaped how major financial institutions engage with the asset management sector and generated significant revenue growth.

Nathan also serves as nonexecutive chairman of Evio and is an advisor to Rings. He is deeply engaged in the mental health community and joined the board of NAMI-NYC in 2006, where he now serves as president emeritus. He also serves on several nonprofit and institutional boards, including the Museum of the City of New York, The Goodness Web and the Compassionate Leadership in Finance program at the Garrison Institute. He also previously served on the board of the Managed Funds Association.

Nathan advises clients on growth strategy, capital markets navigation, operational scaling, organizational transformation and the design of durable, high-impact financial platforms. His experience makes him a trusted partner to investors, founders, family offices and leadership teams navigating inflection points, major transitions or complex strategic challenges.
