About Tom

Tom Reems is a highly experienced corporate lawyer who guides companies, investors and lenders through a wide range of sophisticated transactions.

His practice encompasses venture capital, private equity, mergers and acquisitions, project financing, infrastructure project development, leveraged buyouts and debt financing. Tom has also served as in-house counsel for both an investment fund and a hybrid electric vehicle company. This experience gives him a unique, insider's perspective on the strategic and legal challenges his clients face – allowing him to deliver practical, business-focused legal solutions that go beyond traditional legal advice. Additionally, Tom represents insurance providers in underwriting representation and warranties insurance, further broadening his transactional insight and value to clients.

Tom is also a trusted advisor to international companies entering the US market, helping them navigate cross-border investments and structure successful partnerships with US companies. His deep expertise in complex global transactions makes him a go-to resource for clients seeking clarity and confidence in cross-border transactions.
